WE ARE SHOWING

MORE NEW STYLES

LARGER ASSORTMENT

NEW GOODS

—THAN—

Any House in the City!

In making selections for this season's stock the thought uppermost in our minds has been—What styles and designs will please our customers; what goods and qualities will be best adapted to their individual wants, and how cheaply can we place before all the best styles, the latest patterns, and the most serviceable qualities? In short, from which of the many Spring and Summer offerings will our patrons derive the most pleasure, and from which obtain the most lasting and beneficial results. For our care and labor in this direction we have been amply repaid by the result, as our values are fully appreciated by all visiting our House. The judgment and verdict of the masses, and the favorable comment of our customers has proved that our selections, both as regards quality and style, are correct for the wants of this season and market; while our prices are highly gratifying, in many cases proving a surprise, when quality is considered. At the present time, no day passes without bringing us some new and desirable article of this season's production.

NOBLE BENEFACTION.

Mrs. E. B. Crocker, of this city, has added another to her many noble benefactions. In a spirit of broad philanthropy, and with an unobtrusiveness that speaks of true nobility, she has tendered to the people of Sacramento the splendid temple known as the Crocker Art Gallery, and all the beautiful and costly works of art there in. It is a free gift to the people of the Capital city and the State of California. She places this beautiful building, now surpassing by any in the country, in the hands of the California Museum Association, that within its walls may continue the labor it has entered upon, and which are of the highest character and loftiest aim, and yet of such a practical order as to command the interest of the business sense while obtaining the respect of culture and of the art taste. Such a benediction has never been bestowed by any woman of California upon the people, for it is blessed by the kindness of a heart overflowing with a desire to do good to its fellows and to contribute to their welfare, and is unincumbered by any selfish ambition or the slightest desire for the world's plaudits.

All over this city are to be seen evidences of the charity of this lady; there is not a household in Sacramento where her name is not spoken with tender regard and that respect which honest worth commands and which no wealth can enhance. It is an act of wisdom when one becomes his own executor. Mrs. Crocker very evidently realized that except by some such method as she has adopted the beautiful property referred to would in time fall into disuse and be bequeathed to ignoble purposes, while the magnificent collection of paintings treasured within its walls would be scattered abroad and be stripped of the tender recollections and cherished memories that surround the years which she and her deceased husband devoted to their collection. It was a wise provision, therefore, to attach to the gift that a hundred thousand dollars shall be raised and invested, the income of which shall be devoted to the preservation of this beautiful temple and its rich contents, and to carrying on the work of the Association to which she intrusts the property.

Without this the gift would have been unwieldy and might not have proved the blessing it now certainly will. It was a wise provision, also, that the recipients attach to the acceptance of the gift that the givers shall become, and remain for her life, Directors of the Association. Thus she will still remain closely related to the property around which such fond recollections dwell. The work of the Museum Association, which is a thoroughly representative body of men and women, some rich, some poor, some of independent means, some toiling from day to day for wages, but all actuated by a common unselfish and laudable purpose, is broad and varied, but entirely possible of accomplishment. It is a work which will benefit every man, woman and child in the community, and make life for each better worth living. It will elevate the public tastes, cultivate the better part, enrich the minds of our children and enlarge the public intelligence. It has a very material phase also. While it proposes to afford the people of the State the advantages of art instruction, to provide teachers for the young in drawing and painting up to the demand for them, it proposes also to gather here examples of the products of the State, testimonies of the capacity and quality of our soils, our mines, our forests and our waters, and make here a permanent repository for view by intending settlers, before whom all material facts regarding the State and its advantages and capacities may be laid in minutest detail. It proposes to arm itself also with such appliances of the laboratory as to enable it to apply tests and make analyses as needed, and to apply such other chemical research as it may desire, and to add in time an observatory sufficient for the instruction of all who may choose to avail of it. That such an institution will enlarge the opportunities of the children of the city, entertain its citizens, attract strangers, add to the desirability of residence in Sacramento and enhance trade interests in a fair degree, goes without saying. The simple question is, will the people enable the Association to accept the gift? Within four months they must aid it to success in raising $100,000. The money is not to leave Sacramento. It is no payment out, but a change of investment. It cannot be impaired in any way diminished. It is to be set aside as an enduring investment for the yield of means to insure the perpetuity of the magnificent gift, and the carrying on of the work outlined. The money cannot be raised except an unselfish, broadly patriotic and high public-spirited feeling animates this people. There are firms and men in Sacramento who have made fortunes here, and owe about all they have to "the town in which they live," who can if they so will, raise this money in a week's time. If they do, unincumbered by new conditions and trammeling provisions, they will find it the best investment of years, and the act will remain an enduring monument to their broad public spirit. But the sum had better not be raised and the generous gift be turned to the giver to dispose of elsewhere, if any other than free and unfettered contributions are made. There can be no crippling conditions. Trust must be reposed. We believe it will be. We believe the Museum Association to be the people's work, and a work that will never cease, but ever expand and yearly enlarge its capacity to elevate the tastes of the people, inform their intelligence, stimulate youth to high aims, cultivate the moral sense and contribute to the development and prosperity of the State.

THE LOAN EXHIBITION.

A Continuation To-day and To-morrow—Mrs. Crocker's Splendid Gift.

On Friday night the Directors of the Museum Association resolved to hold the Loan Exhibition open part or all of this week if the people desired it. On Saturday night they ordered it put to a vote, and the audience unanimously decided that it ought to remain open some days yet. Immediately after the vote, Mr. C. C. Holden, president, and myself made this motion, that during the new session, beginning at 9 A. M., to-day, the following talented ladies and gentlemen from San Francisco are expected to appear, they having agreed to give their services gratis to the people's association, the work the people's work, and a work that will never cease, to the giver to dispose of elsewhere, if any other than free and unfettered contributions are made. There can be no crippling conditions. Trust must be reposed. We believe it will be. We believe the Museum Association to be the people's work, and a work that will never cease, but ever expand and yearly enlarge its capacity to elevate the tastes of the people, inform their intelligence, stimulate youth to high aims, cultivate the moral sense and contribute to the development and prosperity of the State.

OUR WATER SUPPLY.

CONTINUATION OF DISCUSSION ABOUT ITS QUALITY.

Strong Statements Against Impurities Contained in it and the Necessity for Better Water.

We published on Saturday quite an extended part of the remarks made by a large number of physicians at the annual meeting of the Sacramento Society for Medical Improvement, concerning the water supply of this city. The society was unanimous in its views as to great impurities existing in the Sacramento river water, on account of sewage, drainage from the tules basins, etc., being discharged into it. A synopsis of the remarks made by Doctors Tyrrell and W. A. Briggs, made on the occasion referred to, are to hand, in addition to those already published, and which, owing to the importance of the subject, and the interest manifested in it by our people at this time, are given below:

REMARKS BY DR. G. T. TYRRELL.

The experiments made by us of this State for the past two months, while endeavoring to have some bills passed for the purpose of increasing the sanitary welfare of the people, and to prevent the spread of various infectious and contagious diseases, made it almost difficult to say anything more than we did, with some cause, and for the health of the community.

The public cannot conceive of a body of medical men meeting together to devise means of improving the water supply of their city, and directly antagonistic to their own interests, in endeavoring to prevent the creation of various infectious and contagious diseases, made it almost difficult to say anything more than we did, with some cause, and for the health of the community.

Two months ago the Russian conquest of the Merw Oasis in the Turkoman desert brought the Russian lines within fifty miles of the Chinese frontier, and subsequently within 200 miles of Herat. This city has been called the key of India because of its position on the only road through the Hindukush mountains.

It is stated that control of this city will be of great importance to England and Russia.

Four men attempted last night to open a door to Carr Brothers' drug store, but were frightened off before they finished the job.

An unusual number of rough characters in the town and the citizens are considering ways and means to get rid of them without the assistance of the Courts.

PIONEER GONE.

GRASS VALLEY, March 21st.—William H. Montgomery, an old resident and pioneer, died last night at 11 o'clock. He was 80 years of age.

Four men attempted last night to open a door to Carr Brothers' drug store, but were frightened off before they finished the job.

An unusual number of rough characters in the town and the citizens are considering ways and means to get rid of them without the assistance of the Courts.

Base Ball.

At Agricultural Park yesterday afternoon there was a large attendance to see the game between the Union and Alta club for $50 a side and the gate money. The game commenced well, and up to the sixth inning the score stood: Union, 2; Alta, 1. During three or four innings neither side made a run, and the spectators were greatly pleased with the admirable playing. In the sixth inning the Alta's scored two runs, and it seemed as if a foregone conclusion that they would win; but the Alta's, when they went to the bat, met with unexpected success; adding seven runs to their one first, and so easily disposed of the Union, that the Alta's were winning by 10 runs. In the eighth inning McLanahan endeavored to run home, and the ball reached the catcher, at the home plate, about the same time that he did. That officer went down to get the ball, and the Alta's, who had been in the water-mouth or two, and was that of a man about 50 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches in height, dressed in dark clothes, white shirt and gray whiskers, but through the action of the water and decomposition of the remains, most of them had disappeared. Before the firemen reached the scene the rear door of the house, on I street, was fastened, and appeared to have been in the water-mouth or two, and was that of a man about 50 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches in height, dressed in dark clothes, white shirt and gray whiskers, but through the action of the water and decomposition of the remains, most of them had disappeared. Continental hops are neglected here, and are shared more than any other class in the general decline. New York State and California hops bearing scarce on the spot are steady at low rates."

DISCOURSED.

An Esteemed Citizen, on Account of Poor Health, Commits Suicide.

Benjamin Franklin Huntly, a resident of Sacramento since 1853, and one of the best-known members of the typographical fraternity on the coast, committed suicide last Saturday at his room in the Union Hotel. For several months he had been in poor health, and his condition showing indications of improvement, the fact seemed to weigh upon his mind, and lately he has hinted to friends that he was determined to die. Lingering Saturday evening, about 7 o'clock, P. S. Watson and J. J. Curry called at his room to see him. His sickness had not confined him to his room, however, and he was seen walking about the Union Hotel, a constant companion upon his employment on a newspaper, when he was not at home. It had not been long before he had come to the conclusion that perhaps he was not as well as usual, and had not got up. When his room was entered he was found seated in a rocking chair in front of the fire, with his head and face covered with blood, which was flowing from a shocking wound in his right temple, while a bulldog revolver in his hand was pointed directly at his heart. It was evident that he had been shot, and it was thought that perhaps he was not as well as usual, but unconsciously. Doctors were summoned and everything done for him that was practicable, but there was no hope of saving his life. At 12 o'clock yesterday morning it was learned that the bullet was fired about 12:30 p. m. Saturday, as it was remembered that the sound of a pistol was heard about that time. It was evident that Mr. Huntly, in these closing moments of his life, was with the determination that he would like to come to a peaceful end.
